Boy, nine, survives wilderness thanks to tips from Bear Grylls

A boy of nine lost alone in the wilderness for 24 hours survived using tips learned from Bear Grylls. Grayson Wynne knew he had to find a shelter for the night, conserve his energy and if possible leave clues for searchers, thanks to watching the British adventurer's TV show.

- 5 He ripped up his yellow jacket and tied the pieces to trees just as he had seen on Man vs Wild, the U.S. version of Grylls' survival programme. Rescuers followed the markers and Grayson, who went missing when he wandered off on a family camping trip, was spotted by park rangers scouring<sup>1</sup> the million-acre Ashley National Forest in Utah. His first words when reunited with his parents Kynan and Kimberley were "Happy Father's
- 10 Day". "I was really scared," he added. "But Man vs Wild tells you how to survive all different terrains." His father added: "The thing that he recognised from the show taught him that you are capable of surviving, regardless of the circumstances you're in."

- 15 Grayson was among a party of 15 who had set out on a hike through the one-million-acre Ashley National Forest in northern Utah. The group had planned to walk four miles to Daggett Lake, set up camp for a long weekend. Grayson went missing on Saturday evening after wandering off on his own. mules fanned out<sup>2</sup> to look for Grayson overnight. Tracker dogs were also brought in as well as helicopters.

20 Despite being scared, Grayson remembered from Grylls' show to find a place of shelter and spent the night under a fallen tree. At daybreak he began using his bare hands to rip up his yellow rain coat and tied pieces to trees. "I just used my hands," said Grayson. "I don't know how many times I tore the thing, but quite a lot." He also accidentally dropped an energy bar wrapper and his rucksack.

25 Grayson told rescuers he decided to follow a creek in the hope of finding help. Rescuers found the discarded sweet wrapper and also footprints in the mud. When Grayson heard a helicopter overhead, he ran into a meadow<sup>3</sup> and waved the last piece of his jacket. Kimberley said: "There were tears, lots of tears, and just happiness."

30 Grylls' show Man vs Wild is among the most popular on the Discovery Channel in the US. In the series, the 35-year-old is forced to endure survival in some of the world's toughest regions from the frozen wastes of Alaska to the Sahara Desert. Grylls, who was the youngest Briton to climb Mount Everest at the age of 23, has made 40 episodes of the series. Often to survive he has to build shelters from available material and eat jungle or forest creatures.

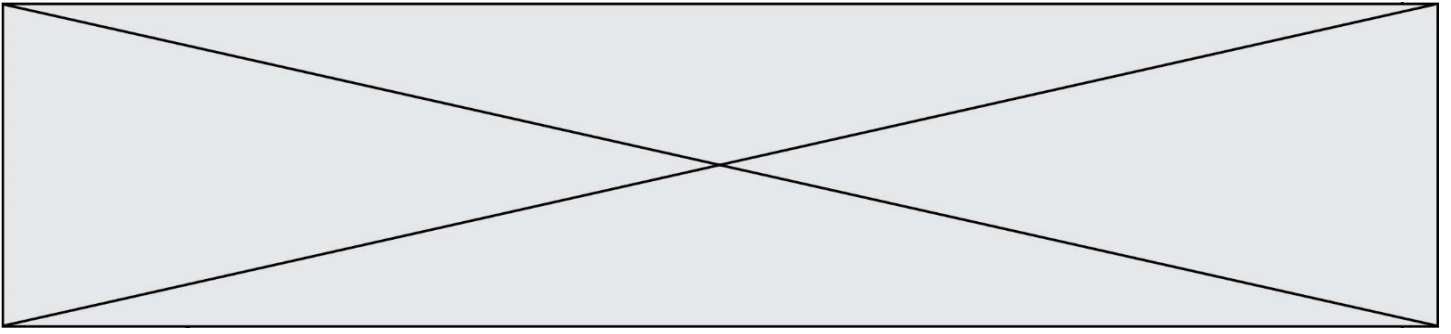

35 Grylls, who has faced accusations of faking some of the tricky situations he has filmed, was last month made Chief Scout of Britain. He was the youngest person to hold the position since Scouts' founder Robert Baden Powell.
