Modèle CCYC: ©DNE Nom de famille (naissance): (Suivi s'il y a lieu, du nom d'usage)
Prénom(s) :
N° candidat :											N° c	d'ins	crip	tio	า :
Liberté · Égalité · Fraternité RÉPUBLIQUE FRANÇAISE Né(e) le :	(Les nu	ıméros	figure	nt sur	la con	vocatio	n.)											1.1

ÉVALUATION
CLASSE : Première
VOIE : □ Générale □ Technologique ⊠ Toutes voies (LV)
ENSEIGNEMENT : ANGLAIS
DURÉE DE L'ÉPREUVE : 1h30
Niveaux visés (LV): LVA B1-B2 LVB A2-B1
CALCULATRICE AUTORISÉE : □Oui ⊠ Non DICTIONNAIRE AUTORISÉ : □Oui ⊠ Non
☐ Ce sujet contient des parties à rendre par le candidat avec sa copie. De ce fait, il ne peut être dupliqué et doit être imprimé pour chaque candidat afin d'assurer ensuite sa bonne numérisation.
☐ Ce sujet intègre des éléments en couleur. S'il est choisi par l'équipe pédagogique, il est nécessaire que chaque élève dispose d'une impression en couleur.
☐ Ce sujet contient des pièces jointes de type audio ou vidéo qu'il faudra télécharger et jouer le jour de l'épreuve.
Nombre total de pages : 4

Compréhension de l'écrit et expression écrite

Le sujet porte sur l'axe 5 du programme : Fictions et réalités

Il s'organise en deux parties :

- 1. Compréhension de l'écrit ;
- 2. Expression écrite.

Afin de respecter l'anonymat de votre copie, vous ne devez pas signer votre composition, ni citer votre nom, celui d'un camarade ou celui de votre établissement.

Texte

Escaping Into Reality: The Importance of Fictional Truth

Sometimes, I feel like I spend most of my life trying to escape from physical reality. As a kid, I was one of the bookworm types, devouring volume after volume with an insatiable hunger. I immersed myself in a world of fiction, meeting and falling in love with characters who I felt were even more alive and real than I was. I yearned for people and places who didn't even exist. I was moved to tears and made to smile by words on a page. With every visit to the library, I lived a hundred more lives.

I enjoy genres that are generally considered "escapist fiction", such as fantasy, romance, and science fiction—anything that's wildly different from my typical day in the life. However, especially as I've grown older, I found myself surrounded by the notion that escapist fiction is inferior to more "serious" literature. It felt almost like a guilty pleasure, nothing more than a source of casual distraction and entertainment. Now, I'm discovering that the value of genre fiction comes from the subjective truth it reveals.

After I reached a certain age, my parents started pushing me to read more nonfiction books. They told me that the fiction I preferred was too frivolous and lacking in any useful real-world knowledge. This led me to view reading for pleasure as a waste of

5

10

15

Modèle CCYC : ©DNE Nom de famille (naissance) : (Suivi s'il y a lieu, du nom d'usage)
Prénom(s) :
N° candidat :											N° c	d'ins	scrip	tior	ı :
	(Les nu	ıméros	figure	nt sur	la con	ocatio	n.)		1
Liberté · Égalité · Fraternité RÉPUBLIQUE FRANÇAISE Né(e) le :																		1.1

time and something to be pushed aside in favor of more "serious" pursuits. In my sophomore literature class when we were asked to introduce ourselves with our favorite book, I said I didn't have one. I did, but I was too embarrassed to say Rick Riordan's Percy Jackson series instead of something like Crime and Punishment by Fyodor Dostoevsky. Over the years, and especially over the course of the pandemic, I've realized that fiction doesn't need to be reminiscent of real life to be valuable. There's a common misconception that escapist fiction is far removed from reality, but I would argue that it is simply a different kind of truth about another aspect of reality.

As a computer science major, I'm constantly viewing the world through a logical lens. If I follow the rules of programming and implement everything correctly, the returned output will behave as desired. On the other hand, literature occupies a very different realm; it's subjective and open to interpretation. When my technical classes are causing me grief and stress, I've found myself gravitating towards literature as a place of comfort. I think studying a field in STEM¹ while enjoying fiction has allowed me to see more clearly and appreciate the coexistence of physical reality and fictional truth. While computer science and science in general is focused outward on the world around us, fiction holds a deeper internal truth.

Part of the reason I find myself so enraptured by fictional characters and worlds is because I see parts of myself and my reality reflected in them. I love the feeling of reading a string of words that somehow perfectly encapsulates a particular feeling or experience that I wasn't sure anyone else had ever felt before. I keep a collection of quotes that have punched me in the gut and left me breathless when I read them. Some of my favorites are: "And now that you don't have to be perfect, you can be good" (East of Eden, John Steinbeck), "But to feel nothing so as not to feel anything, what a waste" (Call Me By Your Name, André Aciman), and "He is half of my soul, as the poets say" (The Song of Achilles, Madeline Miller). It's a very human tendency to relate things to your personal experiences, and there's beauty in the way that fiction allows you to discover these connections on your own.

Karen Li, Berkeley Fiction Review, December 10, 2021

LVRANG1130

20

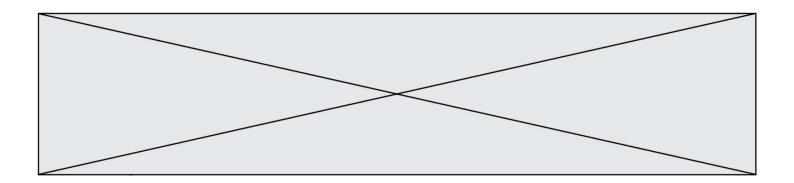

25

30

35

40

¹ STEM : Science, Technology, Engineering and Mathematics

1. Compréhension de l'écrit (10 points)

Give an account of the document, in your own words and in English.

2. Expression écrite (10 points)

Vous traiterez en anglais, et en 120 mots minimum, l'un des deux sujets suivants au choix :

Sujet A:

"Escapist fiction is inferior to more 'serious' literature." Do you agree?

Sujet B:

To what extent can fiction (in books or on the screen) help people find their place in the world?